Fluoridation Returns To Warren

The Warren borough council received an intimation of things to come when it heard a letter from the Board of Health read at its October meeting. Dr. William Walters, writing as secretary of the board, told council that it favored fluoridation and that such a policy also was supported by Warren doctors and dentists as a means of reducing tooth decay in young people. The letter was referred to the public service committee.

(One of the roadblocks to fluoridation when it was proposed in Warren several years ago was the cost. There may be a surprising answer to this today. If it costs Warren little, or even nothing, what will it decide is right?)

Council approved the advancement of Merritt Babcock and Robert English to drivers in the fire department, and voted to invite bids on a new police car. They will be opened at the November 10 meet-

An amendment to the traffic ordinance was passed which limits Rankin st. westerly traffic and makes it a stop street at Poplar.

Engineer Robert DeBell reported that the sewage plant work is about 70 per cent complete and the river crossing about fifty per cent finished. The street program is 80 per cent done.

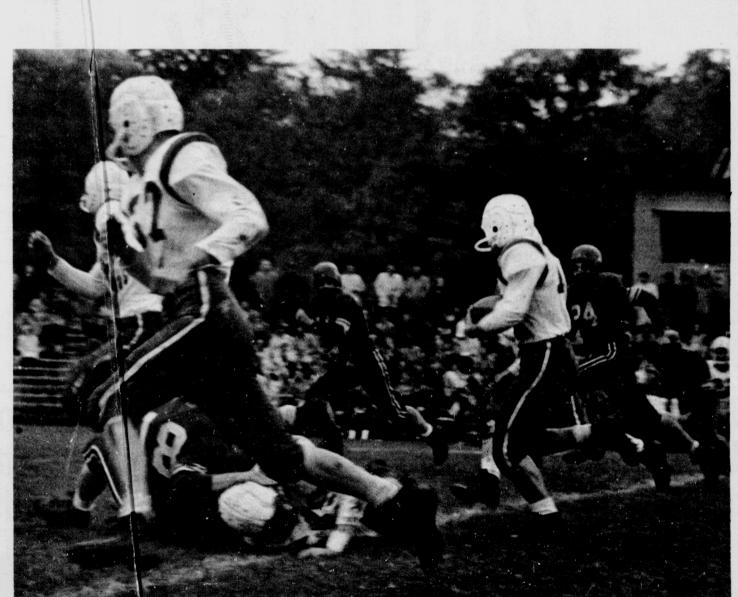

He also reported that the recent resurfacing which was done with tar and crushed gravel will do a better sealing job than black top and cost a fraction as much, about 58 cents per square yard. The cost of surfacing 12,000 square yards was about $7,460.

NEARING COMPLETION. Warren's new $1,250,000 Sewage Plant should be operating by December.

The construction engineer has indicated that the actual plant located on the South Side is 84 per cent finished, and the complete operation approximately 70 per cent. He further indicated that both the West Side and Clark st. pump houses are almost ready for operation and that 15 of the 17 diversion manholes are 95 per cent done.

The occasion for this picture was provided last Friday when a large bulldozer being used at the Clark st. crossing slipped into a hole in the Allegheny River. Two shovels were used to remove the tractor from the water.

65 YARDS AWAY is the pay-off stripe and Dick Terry is on his way. One Meadville tackler already is down and the others closing in soon found unfriendly white jersies blocking them out. Terry scored and the Dragons had their second counter in the Home Coming game which they won, 32 to 7.

MAJOR SAFETY STEP

This column many times has criticized the lack of a law which would require the testing of food before it is sold to the public. The federal food and drug act has made it possible only to prosecute after a food or drug has been proved to be dangerous. And this could be proved only after it had been placed on the market and millions could have used

This year a major step was taken life-saving drugs. to control these dangers to health. An amendment to the federal act now requires the safety of food additives to be established before such chemicals can be used in food or feed for humans or animals. The manufacturer or promoter of a new food additive now must test it on laboratory animals and submit the test results to the Food and Drug Administration.

If the FDA is satisfied it will issue a regulation specifying the amount which may be used, the foods in which it may be used, and the drug's sales. other necessary conditions. In this day of chemicals and synthetics such a law is vital to our life. It still is short of full protection. Products that are consumed in any way, additives or no additives, should be controlled, and those which cause illness should be outlawed.

WONDER DRUGS INVOLVED IN MONOPOLY CASES

Six leading makers of "wonder drugs" were charged by the Federal Trade Commission yesterday with attempting to monopolize the nation's $330 million antibiotics industry and with fixing and maintaining "arbitrary, artificial, non-competitive and rigid" prices for these

The Commissionalso charged that one of the six, Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., 11 Bartlett St., Brooklyn, N. Y., had "submitted false, misleading made false and misleading statements to the U. S. Patent Office in Patent Office in order to get its order to obtain a patent on tetracycline, a key drug among "broad spectrum" antibiotics. More than $100 million in sales of this drug last year made it the leader among antibiotics, the complaint said, adding that Pfizer and the other five companies which it licensed to sell in view of the prior state of the tetracycline accounted for 100% of art" at the time the initial applica-

Joined with Pfizer on a charge of withholding "material and probative" information from the U.S. Patent Office in connection with the tetracycline patent (No. 2,699,054) were the two Bristol firms and Cyanamid. These three as well as Olin Mathieson and Upjohn also were charged with soliciting and accepting from Pfizer licenses to make and sell tetracycline knowing Pfizer and incorrect information" to the tetracycline patent.

The complaint further charged that there was no real invention or novelty in the claims for the tetracycline patent and that the claims "disclosed no patentable invention tion for it was filed. Continuing, the Charged with conspiracy to fix complaint said the "alleged inven-

> After reciting the chronology of early licensing arrangements among Pfizer, the Bristol firms, and Cyanamid for the latter's 1949 patent on Aureomycin, the complaint relates that on January 11, 1955, Pfizer was granted Patent No. 2, 699,054 on tetracycline. "Under prior arrangements" according to the complaint, Pfizer issued a license to Cyanamid to make and sell this newly patented antibiotic, and later, in March 1956, similar licenses were granted by Pfizer to the Bristol firms and to Olin Mathieson and Upjohn.

These licensing arrangements, the complaint alleges, have had the "purpose and effect of unreasonably foreclosing and preventing competition in the production and sale of tetracycline and chlortetracycline." The complaint also charges the firms with having established and maintained illegal resale price maintenance agreements.

Preliminary to making its specific charges, the complaint discusses the importance of antibiotics made by the respondents. It points out that they are popularly known as "wonder drugs" because of their "rapid action, life-saving qualities, and abilities to counteract effectively and cure a broad variety of illnesses and diseases."

Among the many diseases for which they are effective, the complaint says, are pneumonia, syphilis, typhoid fever, meningitis, tuberculosis, plague, and streptococcal sore throat. They also are effective in forestalling infections from surgery and in preventing recurrences of infection and disease as in the case of rheumatic fever.

Antibiotics are, therefore, of vital and unique importance to the health and welfare of the general public," the complaint states.

The trade names of products made by the firms cited in the complaint include the following:

American Cyanamid: Aureomycin, Achromycin, Achromycin V, Achrostatin, and Achrocidin

Bristol-Myers: Polycycline and

Pfizer: Tetracyn, Tetracyn V, Tetrabon, Tetrabon V, Tetracydin, Sigmamycin, Signenycin, Terramycin, Terrabon, and Terra-cortril

Olin Mathieson: Steclin, Mysteclin, Mysteclin V, and Sumycin

Upjohn: Pammycin, Panmycin Phosphate, Comycin, and Panalba

WONDER DRUG STUDIED

The above action may result from a two-year study of the economic factors, prices, patents, production, and marketing, of so-called "wonder drugs". The results of this study can be found in a 361page book, which sells for only one dollar, and can be obtained by writing the U. S. Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

There was a singer who I don't think is quite ready for this league. There were the Dunhill dancers who are always good. There was a rather prolonged joke about the Moiseyev dancers. Berle as usual got mixed up in everything, including the Dunhills and was very good at it. There were no sketches or elaborate bits. At present the plan is to keep it that way and just possibly that's the way to last in this business.

While on the subject of old-timers, one of the oldest of the old-timers has been retooled and sand-blasted from floor to ceiling without nearly such happy results. I speak of Arthur Godfrey whose new show on Tuesday nights (CBS-TV 9 p.m.) is now being referred to as the one 'without the talent.' It's a sort of half hour variety show and far from being fresh and new, it seems awfully old-fashioned and tired. There was some talk of fashioning it after the old Garroway-at-Large show but, after all, that was long ago. Time passes.

Godfrey seems awfully stiff and eager to please. I don't know why, after all these years, he should give a damn but he sure acts as if he does. The last show I saw had Eddie Hod-

But the case which, as the appeals credulity was that of Joseph D. Nunan Jr., United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue from March 1, 1944, to June 30, 1947. THE PERIOD BETWEEN 1948 Nunan was convicted and sentenced and 1953 was one in which the moral to five years in prison for evading years 1946 through 1950.

A lawyer, formerly member of the New York State Legislature and a one-time collector of internal revenue for the First District of New York, Nunan kept no books or personal records and claimed he had no special knowledge of tax matters. Confronted with the charges he had mulcted Uncle Sam, he denied he was a tax expert and insisted he had gotten his two tax jobs only by "the chance of politics."

Two agents of the Intelligence Division of Internal Revenue were assigned to do a special examination of Nunan in October, 1951. Earlier, on February 2, 1951, the House had set out to investigate the Internal Revenue Service, and a few months later Nunan filed amended joint returns for himself and his wife for the years 1949 and 1950.

The agents found that Nunan had no checkbooks or canceled checks for the years prior to 1951. He also told them he had none of the personal financial records which a taxpayer is required by law to keep in order to support the information furnished in his tax re-

Moreover, Nunan said he had made out his returns himself with no accounting assistance, and therefore no other person had any knowledge of his financial situation. On his returns, he disregarded schedules and details which printed instructions noted were absolutely required.

"This is amazing," one of the agents told Nunan. "You must have gotten an idea of what this incometax business was all about when you were commissioner."

Nunan smiled; he was always an affable man. "I'm a lawyer, not a tax man." he said. "My job is getting business for people."

Since Nunan declined to furnish a net-worth statement the Treasurv men got on with their investigation. They found that a large number of items of income had been omitted from his returns for the years 1946 through 1950.

Eventually, they charged that he had underestimated his income during those years by more than $275, 000 and had deposited currency or made cash expenditures in that period of more than $125,000. For instance, in 1946, Nunan and his wife deposited $11,720 in currency in their bank accounts.

Nunan also made numerous cash transactions. When he bought some stock in 1946, he handed over to the brokerage house $6,700 in cash, consisting of sixty $100 bills and fourteen $50 bills. Subsequently, he made another cash payment of $11 253. He paid $29,500 to one dress shop during the years under in-

The ledger sheets of Nunan's bank for the years prior to 1937 had been destroyed, so there was no way of showing what his balance was in the early '30s. But Nunan claimed that in March, 1933, he had $170, 000 in his bank account, and that because he was afraid the bank would fail he had withdrawn this money in amounts ranging from $2,000 to $5,000 and put the cash in a metal box, which was kept on a shelf in his bedroom. Later, he said, he kept this cash in a safedeposit box which he rented at the Chemical Safe Deposit Company in New York City.

Finally, Nunan said he decided to put the money back in the bank and made piecemeal deposits periodically over the years 1946 to 1950. The sum of these deposits, he claimed, was not taxable income as the government charged but the same old $170,000 he had started with, less whatever he'd spent in the

But in statements Nunan gave lawenforcement officers, there were variations. At different times, the amount withdrawn from the Irving Trust Company was $100,000 or $150,000 or $125,000. The amount left on deposit in his personal checking account, despite his fears, was $10,000, or $25,000 or $12,000.

The investigating agents found that Mrs. Nunan had inherited a substantial sum from a rich uncle and an additional amount from her father. She told them she had turned (Continued on next page)

Included in this unreported income were fees he received as a result from his membership in two law firms. Agents discovered that when establishments, auto dealers and he was collector of internal reveflorists. Among other things, they nue in Brooklyn he got $4,000 a For nearly a year, the Treasury they concluded that there never was year from his firm, plus 50 percent

In 1945, when he was commissioner of internal revenue, he had a drawing account of $5,000 a year against 50 percent of the fees. Uncle Sam charged that Nunan received fees from these firms which he concealed not only from the Treasury Department but from his law parmers.

There was the case of the Brown and Bigelow stock. In the fall of 1947, Brown and Bigelow Company wanted to market some of its securities through Otis and Company. The Shore Road, Douglaston, Long stockholder's meeting was scheduled for December 6, and it was necessary to get a "closing agreement" from Internal Revenue before the meeting. In Washington, it was learned that there were so many similar applications on file that it would be impossible to get quick action.

Nunan, who had resigned as commissioner of internal revenue the 1948 joint return under the headprevious June, was retained by matter. Within a few hours he had done his expediting, and Brown and Syndicate, Inc.) Bigelow agreed to pay him a fee of $25,000.

Discussing the fee, Nunan agreed to be paid in Brown and Bigelow stock, which the company president had bought in at $9.50 a share. Accordingly, a computation was made at the nearest approximation 2,630 shares came to $24,985. A bill dated December 28, 1947 was made out by Nunan in that amount, duly receipted and sent to the Brown and Bigelow office in Minneapolis. Nunan got his 2,630 shares on January 2, 1948.

But the bill was not on the billhead of Nunan's New York law firm but on an old form of billhead titled "Joseph D. Nunan, Jr.," with the old address crossed out and the address 55 Liberty Street substituted. Moreover, the stock was not forwarded to Nunan at his law office but sent to him at 604 Island, his home address.

The law firm bookkeeper said he had no knowledge of the matter; one of the partners said only that Nunan had told him Brown and Bigelow had given him some stock and that he had understood that the firm would not receive any of the stock.

Nunan claimed that the Brown and Bigelow fee was included in his "Other Income -- $22,500." Brown and Bigelow to expedite the But the government pointed out that $22,500 is not an amount which can be construed as being identical with $24,985.

> The T-men also discovered that Nunan had helped a physician with a tax problem, for which a $7,500 fee was charged. However, only $6,000 of this fee was paid to the law firm; the doctor made out two additional checks, for $500 and $1, 000, to Nunan's order and the checks then were endorsed to two charities in which Nunan was interested.

To the Treasury, it looked not only as if the firm had lost a $1,500 chunk of its fee but as if Nunan had taken the charitable deduction twice on his income tax return. For Nunan's charitable deductions were listed under the vague heading: "various church and charities."

Judge Harold L. Medina, who ruled on Nunan's appeal, early in his decision stated that "appellant's explanation defies credulity." There was an assortment of items cited. Medina pointed out that "despite the usual explicit statement from his broker, he failed to report a capital gain of $544.80 in 1950."

The judge noted that although Nunan mailed a doctor reminders every year specifying the amount of principal and interest due on a mortgage, he failed to report any of the interest payments, which aggregated $2,278.52 in the five prosecution

Nunan was paid $1,800 on a winning bet in 1948 but there was no mention of this in his return; Nunan explained that his gambling losses exceeded $1,800 in that year, but the law specifies that you have to furnish details if the losses are to be allowed against the gains.

POLITICAL PROGRAMS

No attempt is being made to list the many political spot talks, most of which are from five to fifteen minutes duration. Regularly scheduled programs will be delayed a few minutes in these cases.

CLARION DAM MISINFORMATION Army engineers have pointed up several errors which appeared in a story that accompanied a few pictures appearing in these pages a week or two ago. The pictures, of * * * course, were accurate, but our informant apparently was not. The East Branch Clarion dam does not have hydroelectric power, but must live with television and that it does increase the potential of the Penelec Piney plant by maintaining a flow of water.

TV SHOULDN'T WORRY RADIO

It is claimed that the wise radic operators are learning that they their major competitors really are other radio stations. The smart managers are developing programming with a personality of its own. This may be the thinking that makes it easy to choose a station and stay with it, but if it involves no more personality than is represented by music it can be mighty boring. FARM DECORATION OF YESTERDAY HAS BECOME INSIDIOUS ENEMY

By Lewis Crippen

For years the farmers of the United States have watched with growing consternation the wet seasons which have taken their toll in depleted harvests of wheat, oats, barley, and rye. The rust, they were convinced, was associated with the

MRS. WARREN H. JONES

Ermaline Ann Romano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Romano, Arlington, N. J., and Warren H. Jones, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren H. Jones, of Youngsville, were united in marriage in St. Anthony's Church, East Newark, N.J., on September 7. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Michael Calabrese. A reception followed in the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark.

Mr. Jones is a graduate of The Pennsylvania State University's College of Engineering and is employed by Worthington Corporation, Harrison, N.J. After a wedding trip to Miami and Havana, Mr. and Mrs. Jones will reside in North Arlington, N.J.

SHIRLEY MAE EGBERT

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Egbert, Youngsville, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Shirley 51,000 square miles still infested, Mae, to Lawrence J. Darrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Darrow, local grain and Warren County's Jamestown, N. Y.

dampness and they expected to lose a large portion of the grain every year the clouds were drippy from Spring to Fall.

In the meantime, scientific research revealed that the key to the farmers' problem was growing as beautifying bushes in his front yard or separating his fields as hedges. Years before, European Barberry bushes were brought to the New World by colonists and traveled westward with the early settlers. The rust spores, it was discovered, matured on the under portion of the Barberry leaves in the early Spring and were spread by the wind to the grain plants where they would germinate and grow into the stems. The parasites rob the growing grain of necessary food and water causing the development of under-sized, shriveled, and chaffy grain. The loss to the farmers runs into the millions of dollars annually.

The barberry bush is just one step in the annual cycle of the rust spore. At harvest time the rust remains on the straw stubble and wild grasses where it winters. In the Spring, the barberry bushes are again attacked and become the maturing centers for another year's destroying forces.

Scientists could see an early end to rust by developing rust resistant varieties of grain. They soon discovered that the rust is in 200 races, or physiologic forms, for wheat alone and 14 more for oats and 14 more for rye. When resistant grains are developed the rust spores hybridize on the barberry bushes and develop new races. Only the complete eradication of the barberry bushes, breaking the annual life cycle of the rust spores, could guarantee the needed protection to the growing grain.

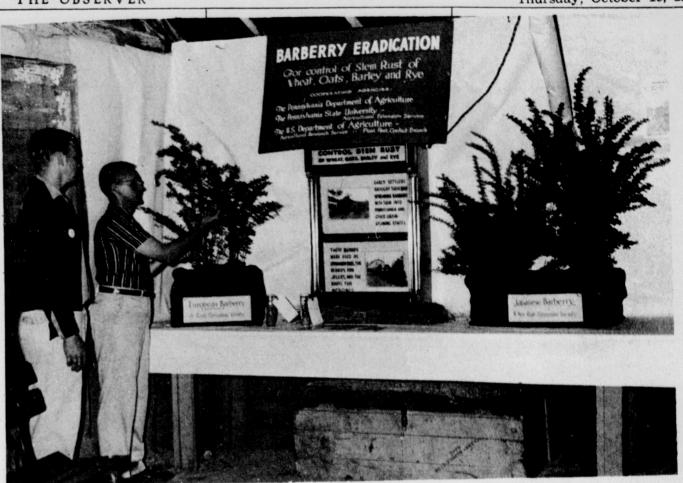

Nineteen states, from Pennsylvania to Washington, across the northern tier of our nation were involved. Since the cold, wet summers encouraged the growth of the spores it was difficult to convince farmers that "germs were the cause" rather than the weather as they had believed for generations. It became a national problem when it was discovered that spores can rise to great heights by the wind and become scattered across the entire

To properly eliminate infectious rust requires the cooperation of the federal, state, and county officials so each of these governments is requested to contribute financially. The barberry bushes are easy to identify but only the persistence of trained personnel making a thorough search of each county, farm by farm, can assure their destruction. Since barberry seeds have been known to germinate after lying dormant up to 10 years, a once-over search will not completely eliminate the bushes.

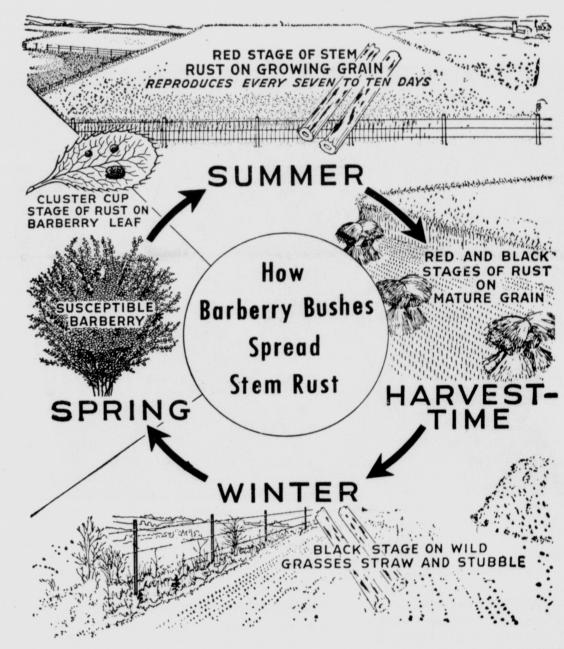

The barberry eradication program's aim is to destroy all rustspreading bushes on more than one million square miles of land. The, states in this area produce more than 2 billion bushels of small grain annually. In addition, some eradication work is being conducted in Idaho, New York, and Oregon by state and local agencies. So far, more than 980,000 square miles have been cleared of barberry bushes; more than 470 million bushes have been destroyed; more than 147,000 rural and urban properties have been cleared of barberry bushes.

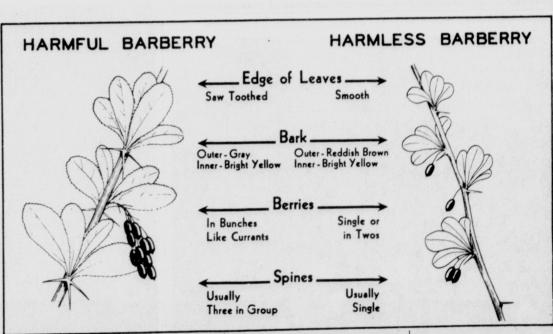

Warren County is part of the Stem rust still claims its toll of barberry bushes still produce Miss Egbert, a graduate of spores which are often blown into

Road Trips Are Work

Out of town football games for the Warren High School football team are more than just a ballgame sandwiched between a bus ride to and from the site of the night's action as these pictures taken during the Blue and White's recent trip to Oil City attest.

Preparations for the trip begin when a list of players making the trip is posted outside the WHS football locker room along with the departure time.

About a half hour before departure time, the players begin to arrive at the high school to pack their individual equipment and uniforms. The varsity managers, Denny Bonavita, Denny Davis, Tom Stilwell and Bill Lombard, are already at the high school busily packing the team equipment and taking care of the many small details which crop up before the trip starts.

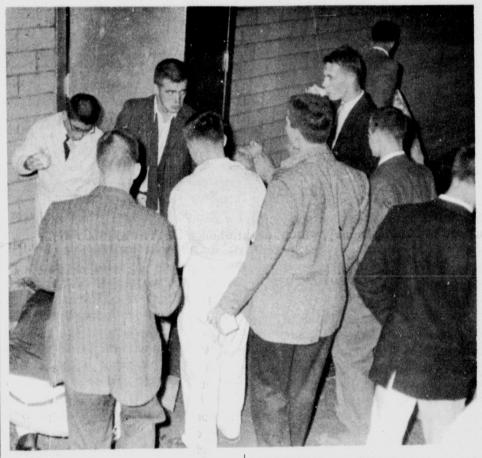

When the bus arrives, the players load their individual gear and the managers stow the team gear on the bus and settle back for the trip ahead. Roll is called before the bus pulls out of the high school parking lot to make certain no one has been left behind and the team is on its way.

THE REAL WORK still remained for the varsity managers. Here manager Bill Lombard, along with the other manager and coaches, spread the wet uniforms out on the floor to dry. On Sunday afternoon they would return to gather up the then dry uniforms and clean them in preparation for the next time they would be used.

Last spring the Commission released 3,100 of these birds at the rate of one gobbler to four hens. Before the opening day another 3,500 tom turkeys will be set free. Added to those already afield the boys with the guns might come close to the and refreshments. And we will toss 16,156 kill of last year.

If you are one for quail on toast, about 12,000 were blasted. (For the underbase, see Anderson's.)

The duck population this year was enhanced by the margin of 11,300 mallards and 200 Canadian geese. Hunters in Pennsylvania knocked off over 300,000 of these last season, which suggests that we have no way of predicting the results.

Don't expect much improvement in the grouse situation. As usual they are not apt to wait for you to come in close, and they love to park in the thickest spots. They also seem as wary on the opening day as they are in late season, which constantly makes us suspicious.

However, this may be a test of the fittest, and the most fit may be those who learn to live in heavy cover and to take a course of flight which turns behind trees, knolls, and underbrush. Last year the hunters shot about 41,000 of these birds, which was 8,000 less than a year before.

Everyone says the squirrels are plentiful. But we suggest they will be plentiful in spots, as is the case with feed this year. Some beech and oak trees are loaded with food. Others are quite lacking in fruit. We have seen many greys and blacks on the highways this summer, which is a bit unusual. And we have heard a few talking real big where none were heard in 1957. The kill in that year was 728,342, far below the 939,127 of 1956.

We have seen many rabbits. Almost as many as in the big year of 1956. But field reports say they are abundant only in spots. However, there are plenty for a good dog to nose out. Last year the kill was 1,455,862.

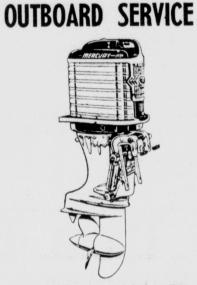

The overall study suggests there should be enough game to give you some sport. If you are going to live on it, the supply may be light. If it is fun you are after you may find a bit in all fields and forests.

The Commission says its hunting
